

CIRM Scholars Program

Application Instructions

Program Overview

The CIRM Scholars Program expands the Cedars-Sinai education and training for graduate students, postdocs, and clinical scholars. The goal of the program is to educate trainees in broad foundations of clinical and translational research, with a spirit of creativity and independence, to optimize their chances of becoming productive academic researchers. This includes highlighting the relevance of basic scientific knowledge to regenerative medicine, and focused on research related to prediction, prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of human disease

Application Process & Admission

High academic achievement and considerable interest in a career as a research or clinical investigator are required. Application is open for U.S. citizens and international scholars.

All Applicants must complete the “CIRM Scholars Application Form,” which includes items 1- 3 below.

1. Scholars Application form (Sections 1-8)
2. A letter of recommendation and commitment by the applicant’s research mentor(s)
3. Current C.V. (Include manuscripts in preparation and submitted)

Application Deadline is January 7th, 2022 by 5 PM PST.

Please submit the application form by clicking on “Submit Application Form”. An interview with the Program Director will then be scheduled.
